Dear Sir

I should regret if I had displeased you and can only state that if you find the Gustation in my letter in The Engineer of Dec. 25th 1891 unsuitable (as referring to a letter of yours) - I much regret the circumstances and it is an error of fact rather than of intention. You may think I have troubled you unduly by the mention of a personal matter; and if you would kindly return me Prof. Guching Bothmann's letter (two sheets) and papers of Wiedemann's Annalen, I should be much obliged. It need scarcely be added, as a fact, how much I have appreciated the scientific value of the correspondence with you, and (without presuming) trust that a few original points communicated on my side - experimental and otherwise - may not have been without interest. With regards, I remain

Yours very truly
J. Tolson Preston

P.S. Some remarks by you at the Physical Society meeting about Ironless Dynamos attracted my attention, and I may perhaps allude to a few paragraphs of myself in The Electrician of Feb 26.
