Dear Sir,-

I regret very much to inform you that your very interesting note for the Astrophysical Journal dated Nov. 25, 1896, has only just come into my hands. By mistake on the part of the University Press it was placed in my box at the University in Chicago, and not forwarded to the Yerkes Observatory in accordance with my instructions. I therefore did not find it until I by chance visited the University yesterday.

I shall do my best to atone for this long delay by publishing it immediately in the March number of the Astrophysical Journal. I shall be glad to receive from you in the future any papers or notes that you feel inclined to publish in the Journal. These and all other communications should be addressed to me at the Yerkes Observatory, Williams Bay, Wisconsin.

Yours very truly,

George E. Hale
