from their colds by
now, it is provoking
when children will get
colds just at the end of the holidays.

We are all well, except that my husband has been overworking -
hence his voyage.

Dear Prof. Fitzgerald

I quite thought
you were a graduate of Cambridge, but I am glad I made the mistake, since it
elicited a letter from

you which is so sympathetic to the cause.

If your visit to England will not begin before Wednesday next we should be so glad if you would stay with us, unless you are otherwise engaged. Will & Edie are on their way home by sea from Naples, & they are not quite sure of arriving till Wednesday, although they may arrive as early as Monday evening, so that I cannot ask you to come before Wednesday.

I hope your children
