

but I would take the man as a guarantee that anything he writes will be good. I have been reading many things from him lately and they are all frustrate. Secarmont is appears in the Annals de Chimie N. III. T. XXXIII.

Dear Mr. Success
John Tyndall

27/9

July? 1852

My dear Francis.

I thought I had overcome my bunch of caution regarding the memoirs. I mentioned a paper of Secarmont several weeks ago as worthy of translation. ~~It~~ and I said you would ~~have~~ ~~it done~~ look to it. I knew that it together with the two I have already sent you and Miedemaire would be more than sufficient for the forthcoming number. But I have not neglected ~~the~~ ^{the} enclosed scraps of letters — one of which reached me this morning with Jones. and notwithstanding the delay occasioned by the ~~absurdly~~ fellow himself I have full reliance that Scott will send me the paper in time for ^{well} translation publication. If you will allow me my ~~own~~ portion of the ~~Scots~~ ^{Scots} ~~Man~~. I will engage to have my translations in your hands at least half a month previous to publication — I think some arrangement ought to be made so that we may all pay for translations which our own engagements prevent us from executing. I shall be very glad indeed if the expenses of publication could be equally distributed over all our shoulders.

Bunsen's paper I have never ^{seen}