

In their excursion to the Channel Isles, to perhaps combine pleasure & profit.
I had intended to ask you some time ago if it would not be advisable to see the College Registrar or Bursar with reference to the advantages I am obtaining in your laboratory, but I don't quite know how such things are arranged at Trinity College, being under the impression that it is only by your great kindness that I am allowed there at all. I am much disappointed that I have so far got very little time in at the work. My recent visit to England owing to family misfortune, and now my illness which is doubtless due to worry, upset my plans. However I am hoping to do better when I return.

My address in London will be 21 Alvia Road, Clapham Junction. S.W.
With kind regards

Yours very truly
Walter Thorp.

Dear Sir, I am sorry that I shall be unable to turn up at the laboratory after tomorrow for a fortnight. I was down today and found you had gone to London; however I could not work being too weak from the influenza or some similar affection.
I went to the "Model" doctor this afternoon & as he heard I had to go to London next week he thought a sail round the coast might set me up, so I followed his advice. Went to the Turkish baths and intend sailing for London (or as far as Southampton) tomorrow evening.
I have to meet my mother in London visiting her to see an oculist. That will take some time, and as I have got no work with this epidemic (or whatever it may be) perhaps I shall find it advisable to join Prof James Long & Sons of the Brit. Dairy Farmers
