

I dare say that the author knows nothing of Keely: yet, he has conjectured what Keely has demonstrated. 4/45

"The horizon of matter, which has been thought to rest over attenuated hydrogen, may extend to infinite reaches beyond, including stuffs or substances which have never been revealed to the senses. Beings fashioned of this attenuated substance might walk by our side unseen, nor cast a shadow in the noon-day sun."

Hudson Tuttle.

Questions asked by James Clerk
Maxwell, in letters to his friends.

1st Does gravity require time?

2nd Is it polar to the outside of the Universe or to anything?

3rd Has gravity any reference to electricity, or does it stand on the very foundation of matter or inertia?
