

and I have some ideas as to how to do it but the difficulty is that any Scheme means more attendances in London for Mr. Hammer and, I don't know how you are situated, but I find I have plenty to do at present. Indeed if it came to much more I should have to retire One reason for being glad

Dear Fitzgerald.

I have left your letter looking unanswered & I was delighted to see you were to be my colleagues at London and feel sure we shall get an excellent together. My plan with Remond has been to send him rather more than half the total questions required and to ask him to send me the same after seeing my questions He selected those he preferred from my set criteria.

I say them suggesting defects etc and selected the same from his on some occasions but by no means always we met and discussed things I will send you as soon

As term is over here a lot of questions for the July exam. - The practical work will of course be a difficulty I don't know how they are to work it I say that we neither you have a laboratory in town but we have none of that till October and shall meet before then to discuss it Quite agree with W. Jenkins thought to be extended at your appointment is that I will bring you more of the substance of the world. He shall be delighted to see you here any time you can come I saw Sir R. Balle this day and he told me of the arrival of your second daughter I hope both she and Mrs. Fitzgerald are well and happy. With kind regards to which my best wishes

Very sincerely
